Shortlisting will be based on the information provided (see Appendix A) using the Evaluation Criteria set out in Appendix B. Please read Appendix A carefully and comply fully with the requirements.

The deadline for receipt of applications is Friday, April 10th 2015. The selection panel will consider submissions received by this deadline and select up to three artists to go forward to Stage 2 of this process.

Stage 2 Proposal

£500 will be made available to up to three artists / teams who will be invited to present their proposals to the selection panel. The proposal must include; sketch designs, visualisations and/or a maquette as well as an explanation of the concept for the artwork, how it relates to our theme and how the artist/artist team would approach its design, fabrication and installation. Details of maintenance requirements and lifespan expectations should also form part of the presentation.

The artist/artist team must demonstrate how the work can be implemented within the allocated budget and details of the anticipated duration of the project with timescale broken down into research, production and delivery. The selection panel aims to select one artist / team to undertake the commission.

Clogher Le Chéile will be at the heart of this project and the selected artist/artist team must demonstrate how they will work with the community to develop a sense of ownership / pride in the piece & the environment and most importantly help create a shared space for all. Therefore the artist/artist team must also outline the approach they will take to engage and work with the local community and showcase the successful project.

Selected artists /teams must submit their presentations to Rosemary Myers, Chairperson, Clogher Le Chéile, Druminnin, Donegal PO, Co Donegal by Friday, April 10th 2015

BACKGROUND

The project seeks to develop a legacy artwork reflecting Clogher Le Chéile's work in enhancing the community's cohesion.

The Building Peace through the Arts – Re-Imaging Communities Programme themes are community cohesion, regeneration through the arts, positive relations at the local level, peace and reconciliation, connecting communities.

Clogher Le Chéile is a community group comprising the residents of the townland of Clogher, (meaning the 'stony place') Barnesmore which is situated six kilometres from Donegal town. The group engages in social capacity building activities such as local history studies; training; mentoring of traditional crafts and amenity enhancement works. They have recently undertaken a major community publication about the townland which won an award in a national competition. Building on this foundation, this project will allow the residents to celebrate the good relations which exist but also address any latent tensions which exist as a result of the Troubles in this border area of Ulster.

In Clogher, it is hoped that by working together on a community based arts project, the community can tackle any underlying sectarian feelings by promoting a sense of inclusiveness that acknowledges the continued building of a community where all traditions are interconnected in a shared future. The overall objective of the project is to promote an inclusive sense of civic and cultural identity for all people in Clogher, Co Donegal.

As a first phase of the project an Artist was recruited to carry out creative community consultation with a wide range of stakeholders in the community. He presented a report containing his findings to a steering group including possible themes and potential site locations for the proposed artwork. The steering group agreed that “A Sense of Place, a Sense of belonging” as the theme most open to artistic interpretation with the preferred location for the public art being Clogher Bridge.

3. ARTIST’S BRIEF

Theme : “A sense of place, a sense of belonging”

The consultative process undertaken at the commencement of this project provided a forum for people from the townland of Clogher and surrounding area to discuss openly issues relating to the ‘troubles’. It also enabled them to reflect on their own lives today and the type of community, in terms of openness and non-discrimination, they would like to see for themselves and their children. It re-kindled memories of the self-sufficiency of their ancestors; how they supported each other and the sense of belonging which they had to the townland - even among those who emigrated. The consultation identified the importance of roots and feeling rooted; the natural heritage of the area including places of outstanding beauty, flora and fauna and places of historical significance. It also allowed the community, of all ages, to talk about play and leisure, craft and sport as well as the changes that have occurred over the recent years.

The theme above expresses positive aspects of community such as friendship, warmth, support and interdependence. In this regard, it resonates very strongly with the BpttA objectives towards community cohesiveness and building positive relationships at local level. This theme is universal too, we are all connected by our sense of belonging to a family and community.

The process of commissioning a piece of public artwork to celebrate the theme generated during Stage 1 is another step along the journey of inclusiveness and participation that has not only rekindled an older community spirit but very importantly will built on it.

Project Specific Constraints: It is part of the artists brief to contact utilities companies and statutory agencies for advice in regard to nearby services i.e. electricity and water supply for any artist wishing to incorporate light or water as part of the art works, although this is not a pre-requisite of the brief. Any work involved in extending the services to the site will be part of the overall budget. The site is on the bank of a river in a special area of conservation at the side of a relatively busy road so, consequently, the artist will have to take environmental issues and road safety into consideration.

Materials: The brief does not specify the materials to be used, but the artwork is intended to be permanent and of high quality. Therefore should be made of high quality, durable materials which require minimum maintenance.

Other Considerations: The successful artist / team will be expected to provide satisfactory drawings and elevations to satisfy planning procedures. On completion of the project, the successful artist will be required to provide an engineer's certificate to satisfy the groups Steering Panel that the artwork has been designed, constructed and installed in accordance with current standards and judgments.
